STOCK MARKET TURNS VERY DULL

Stocks were bid up smartly at the opening on the New York Stock Exchange today. A series of bear raids failed to accomplish more than to drive leading issues somewhat under their top prices for the day, and in the fourth hour the market turned very dull. It marked the first "rest period" for weary tape-readers since the initial break this week.

2 VICTIMS OF RABIES IN MONTREAL HOSPITAL

These cases are the first among human beings that have come to light since the outbreak of the hydrophobia epidemic on the western part of the island of Montreal some weeks ago. Temporal Power

DEAR OLD WALL STREET—Annoyed tantrums and hysterical yappings. Little dead lambs, neatly shorn, were swept out to make room for mops, and prices bobbed up. "Pia" signs shone on the ticker, like candles in the night. Mr. Livermore, our earnest young red-headed bear, is supposed to have made at least a million in a day or so. Other bears made other millions.

SECRETARY MELLON knows more about business than all the gamblers of Wall Street put together, and he says the "shakedown" has been good for real business. It makes men think more about constructive work, less about gambling. So everything is serene, from the church at the top of Wall Street to the East River dock at the bottom.

WHILE WE WORRY about our limitation panic, or rejoice over Wall Street's recovery, Europe, Asia and Africa are busy as usual.

Emmeline Pankhurst returns to lead the women's movement in England. That will not be dull. Lady Astor, young American woman, offered to Mrs. Pankhurst her seat in the Commons. It was declined.

EVEN THE MOST peaceful of nations can't thrive with no central government or real governing power. With civil war menacing all China, Japan would be glad to take charge, supplying order and direction. But Chinese hate Japanese even more than they hate the British. That is England's good fortune. Where the rules satisfy her she has each other more than they have, and no combined attack is made against her.

THE JAPANESE fear that if they can't lead China to her destiny, whatever that may be, the Russian Bolshevik will take charge. That would worry Japan and Western Europe. If Russia could produce such a man as Peter the Great and give him China's four hundred million people as new material to build things, Peter knew how to wait and learn. Not even Japan stopped Western ways as easily as did Peter.

by D'Annunzio called "The Martyrdom of St. Sebastian," and Catholics have been forbidden by the Vatican to attend the play. Recently D'Annunzio celebrated his birthday, with many honors from Mussolini's government, and it was planned to arrange for him a special audience with the Pope. The Pope declined to grant the audience.

THE GOVERNMENT of Italy officially takes all temporal power from the Pope, outside the walls of the Vatican.

POLITICIANS ARE interested in Mr. George E. Brennan, Democratic boss of Chicago, who will run for the United States Senate, Tammany Hall, making an exception, will wander 900 miles from his own fire to Chicago's "loop" to do what can be done for its good friend Brennan, spending money and demonstrating its political efficiency for Mr. Brennan.

VERA WINS SUIT TO ENTER; MISCONDUCT IS NOT CRIME IN AFRICA

New York, March 5 (A.P.).—Vera, the Countess of Cathcart, won her suit to remain in this country today when Federal Judge Bondy sustained a writ of habeas corpus, after District Attorney Backner had entered in the record that her misconduct does not constitute a crime under the laws of the union of South Africa.

The Countess had been denied admission on the ground of moral turpitude after her admission that she had accompanied the Earl of Crevecoeur to South Africa from England where both were married.

After detention on Ellis Island for several days, the Countess was released today.

BANK OFFICIAL IS ARRESTED IN FRAUDS

Bridgeport, Ct., March 5 (A.P.).—Clarence W. Kuhne, assistant treasurer of the Mechanics & Farmers Savings Bank, was placed under arrest today.

The arrest was made on a warrant secured by state bank commissioner John Byrne and charged Kuhne with falsification of entries. City Court Prosecutor Shannon, in a statement following the serving of a complaint based on information provided by Commissioner Byrne, said that Kuhne for a period of more than ten years had been falsifying entries in the books of the bank to cover a shortage of $11,000. He is not, however, charged with embezzlement of funds.

According to his story Kuhne admitted in a spirit of sympathy to cover defalcations made about ten years ago by a young woman clerk in the bank, whom he says he has not seen or heard from in the past ten years.

The fire started in the basement from an overheated furnace, and was discovered by Nathan Schuman, who conducted a tailor shop on the first floor. Schuman ran through the building to warn the occupants, but found them already trying to get out with a few belongings.

The family of William Finard had a narrow escape from the top floor apartment, which filled with smoke. CASE AGAINST 2 MORE IN CHELSEA RUM TRIAL COLLAPSES; JURY OUT

The Chelsea rum conspiracy trial, after nearly six weeks of testimony, was given to the jury in Federal Court today at 1 o'clock. Judge Elish Brewster started his charge shortly after 11 o'clock following the conclusion of the final argument of U.S. District Attorney Harold P. Williams.

Pollution and prostitution of the governing powers in a neighboring city were the issues in the Chelsea rum conspiracy trial, United States District Attorney Harold P. Williams told the jury in concluding his final argument today.

District Attorney Williams caused surprise by announcing, during the argument, that he did not expect the jury to convict Eli Weinstein and Louis Sears, two of the 11 defendants, who include Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea.

"This is not a liquor case, but a case of more important issue," he said. "Liquor is mentioned here only because the overt act had their inception in liquor traffic."

"The issue of this case is bribery and corruption," Mr. Williams declared the jury would find evidence adduced to support the government's charges that a general conspiracy existed to corrupt the government of Chelsea between the mayor and the humblest defendant.

He denounced the attacks made by defense counsel and witnesses on Assistant District Attorney Eliza D. Stone and Department of Justice.

'L' CAR GRINDS WOMAN TO DEATH IN E. BOSTON

Mary Cadogan, a shoe worker of the Hood Rubber Company, Waterbury, Conn., was killed instantly today by a trolley car on Bennington street, East Boston, near her home.

The young woman came here from Ireland a few months ago and made her home with her uncle, John P. Harrington, at No. 491 Bennington street.

She had left her home to go to work. Running for the car, she slipped and fell beneath it.

Her body was wedged beneath the car so tightly that the fire department was called to jack up the car. Traffic on the line was tied up for more than a half-hour.

The car was in charge of Motor-man Benjamin Theodore of No. 117 Lexington street, East Boston, and Conductor Gustave Manion of No. 12 Fourth street, Chelsea.

ROXBURY LANDMARK SWEEP BY FLAMES

Fire today swept through the historic building at Dudley and Kenilworth streets, Roxbury, formerly known as Oregon Hall, but remodelled recently as a dwelling and store by George Deard.

Deards family were driven out by the fire and smoke. The building is a two-story structure of stone and wood and the Deard family occupied the second floor.

The flames, working up rapidly from the basement, spread quickly through the building and threatened to spread to adjoining buildings. Two alarms were sounded.

Damage was estimated at $7,000.

The building was at one time a school in which Ralph Waldo Emerson taught, and in 1825, the Norfolk Bank, the first Roxbury banking institution, was founded in it.

The Boston Consolidated Gas Company used the building for its Roxbury offices until a few years ago.

DARK RACES ARE NOT INFERIOR, SAYS POPE

Rome, March 5 (A.P.).—The belief that the dark-skinned races are inferior to the white is a mistaken one, Pope Pius declares in a encyclical letter published today vigorously urging an increase in the number of Catholic clergymen in the so-called uncivilized regions of the world.

The Holy See says that long experience proves that these peoples, erroneously termed inferior, can compete with the white races in mental acumen.

"If in the heart of barbarous lands," he writes, "there are good men who seem slow to learn, this is explainable by the conditions of their life, of which the restricted needs do not allow them to make large use of their intelligence."

Newfoundlanders Were Out of Water and Down to 3 Bits of Hardtack a Day

Aboard S. S. Volendam, bound for Plymouth, England, March 3 (A.P.).—The Dutch liner Volendam, which left New York February 27, is steaming eastward today with Captain Charles Ross and his crew of five men, rescued from the sinking schooner General Smith, safely aboard.

The General Smith's men were taken off the vessel yesterday when they had almost given up hope after two weeks of hardship at sea.

DROWNED IN 18 HOURS.
The rescue was effected in a choppy sea by a boat crew consisting of the Volendam's chief officer and five crewmen. The schooner was in such a condition, Captain Ross reported, she could not last another 36 hours. Fear of her men was in the liner's cabin.

The General Smith, a three-master of 110 tons, owned by S. Piercy of St. John's, N. F., sailed from Bonanza for St. John's on December 18, with a cargo of mail. The schooner sailed on its first voyage, which was to last for three weeks, and was bound for January 15, when it was to arrive in New York.

MADE TOUCH OF RAGE.
The schooner began to leak, and in spite of continuous pumping, filled steadily, spilling the cargo of mail and most of the crew's ration. The crew was reduced to three biscuits of hardtack a day and suffered terribly from lack of water.

When the drifting sailing vessel sighted the Volendam, Captain Ross ordered a signal, making a torch of red sail in turpentine which he hoisted on the topmast. The flying words attracted the attention of the officers on the liner's bridge, and Captain De Koning changed his course for the rescue.

GRASSO GIRL'S DEATH FINDING IS 'MYSTERY'

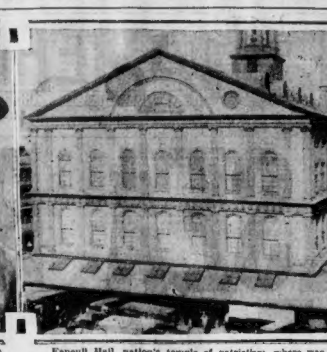

Brightfield, March 5 (A.P.).—The death by shooting of Yolande Grasso, seventeen years old, of Agawam, remains an "unexplainable mystery." In the opinion of Judge W. R. Healy, expressed in his inquest report today, "The girl was found by a stranger brother dying of a pistol wound in the abdomen in a bedroom of her home, where she was alone. The shot was fired from a revolver owned by an adult brother. The report finds it hard to see how she could have accidentally shot herself. On the other hand, no suspicion attaches to any other person."

More than 500 pilgrims from the Boston archdiocese, under the personal leadership of His Eminence, Cardinal O'Connell, will journey to Chicago to participate with more than a million persons in the twenty-third International Eucharistic Congress, which will open on Sunday, June 20, and continue until and including June 24.

SALEM WOMAN, HAWTHORNE'S FRIEND, 100

Salem, March 5.—All about her relatives and friends have died—including Nathaniel Hawthorne—but Miss Mary Elizabeth Newhall, oldest woman in Salem, still lives and will celebrate her 100th birthday next Tuesday.

She will celebrate, but it will be in name only, for ninety-seven of her 100 years of life, as a cripple, have left her enfeebled. When she was three years old she suffered in infantile paralysis, and since has been unable to walk without crutches of a cane.

In the old days Nathaniel Hawthorne was a friend and neighbor of Mrs. Newhall, whose father was William Newhall, town clerk of Salem from 1841 to 1852. His bell is preserved in the Essex Institute.

Just in time for breakfast, and with an appetite that Novak should find his pedals into his home in the Fenway at 7:30 a. m. today, after a steady tramp since 9 p. m.

Pacing him alternately were John Davidson and Peter Googis of Providence, while J. J. Ryan of Providence rode as referee.

The hike was made as the result of a wager between Novak and a Providence real estate man that the Bostonian could not better Miss Sears' mark.

NETTLETON RESISTS WIFE'S ACTION

Cambridge Man Tells Probate Court He Was Misunderstood by Mate

Languid scenes along the Caribbean with other men's wives, dancing and bridge aboard ships figured in the suit for separate support brought by Mrs. Louise E. Nettleton of Cambridge against George Albert Nettleton in Middlesex Probate Court.

The suit had been brought on Tuesday, but after nearly a day had been consumed in testimony, the case was continued without day by Judge Beane because Mr. and Mrs. Nettleton effected a reconciliation in the court room.

The reconciliation was short-lived, however, and yesterday afternoon after the close of the regular court business Mr. Nettleton took the stand in his own defense. The case at the expiration of his testimony, was taken under consideration by Judge Beane.

Mr. Nettleton said he was a mail clerk on board the Avon, a steamer of the Panama line, and as such was receiving $2,500 a year, "barely enough to live on after tipping the waiters to get a decent meal on board."

"Last night," he said, telling how the reconciliation came to naught, "I called our affairs over with Mrs. Nettleton and my daughter Vivian."

SLEEPY LITTLE BABY.

"I told them once when I was visiting friends a little girl in the house was sitting on my lap and she went asleep. This made me nervous. I told them for it reminded me of the days when Vivian used to go to sleep on my lap."

"My wife told me that my friends should have objected to this. I lost my temper, because I felt she put an improper construction upon the incident. I was so incensed that I left shortly after."

When asked later whether the "little girl" was 18 or 19 years old, he said he didn't know, but that she might have been.

He admitted he danced and played bridge on board the Avon, "but without expense," Herbert B. Harris, Mrs. Nettleton's attorney, asked him whether he was having a better time away from home and whether that wasn't the reason he didn't want to come home. He declined to answer.

FAUNCE, DEAN OF HOUSE, IN COLLAPSE

Representative Walter Faunce of Kingston, dean of the House in his 44th year, collapsed at the State House today and is in a critical condition at the Homoeopathic Hospital.

The legislator sank to the floor of the corridor just as the bell was sounding for the House session. Fellow legislators reached for his sinking form, but were too late.

Several days ago the aged legislator almost suffered a similar collapse, but several of his companions supported him and his weak spell passed.

The legislator was born on November 14, 1882, and served his first term in the Legislature of 1890, long before many of the present legislators were born.

He has lived all his life in Kingston, where he has been a school teacher, a Plymouth County commissioner for twenty years, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, school commissioner and president of the Marshfield Agricultural Society.

GIRL GARMENT WORKER GETS DEATH THREAT

While rendition of a quick settlement of the garment strike was being made today by Julius Hochman, chief spokesman for the workers, a Cambridge woman reported to the police the receipt of a death threat because she remained at work.

The threat, received by Miss Frances Burrill of No. 88 Hancock street, Cambridge, read:

"Quit work or we will kill you."

Miss Burrill, who is employed at the B. H. G. Dress Company shop in Green street, Cambridge, handed the note over to the police at Central square station.

Hochman, vice-president of the International Ladies' Garment Makers Union, announced that the 1,200 or more men and women still on strike would be given definite information of the details of a proposed peace pact at a mass meeting this afternoon in Seaside Temple, Berkeley street.

A tentative agreement has been reached, he said, and negotiations which would doubtless lead to a permanent agreement were in progress.

U. S. Debt Drops Million a Day Last Month

Washington, March 5.—More than a million dollars a day was cut from the nation's public debt during February, the Treasury announces.

The government entered this month with a net debt of $19,925,311,622.85. This was nearly $3,500,000,000 below the peak reached in August, 1919, a reduction of more than 20 per cent.

Uncle Sam had a $340,000,000 balance in the general fund, which reduced by that amount the total gross debt of $20,276,145,000.33.

CLOTHESLINES SAVE GIRL IN FEAR LEAP

New York, March 5 (I.N.S.).—Shot in the army by one of eight thugs who held up a poker game in her apartment at No. 148 West Ninety-sixth street early today, Lucille Lewis, twenty-one, jumped from a third-story window. She was saved from death by clotheslines which broke or fell.

The girl was taken to Knickerbocker Hospital suffering from the gunshot wound and a broken leg. She told police she jumped because she feared she would be murdered and wanted to get help.

The three escaped with $1,000 and jewelry, but detectives arrested Joseph Matallara, twenty-five, and Peter Peroni, twenty-eight, who recently was released from Sing Sing.

The other three players told police the girl ran to the window and screamed for help when the bandits entered. One bandit shot her in the left arm to silence her.

The girl screamed again and as the bandits closed in on her she climbed through the window and plunged to the courtyard.

RUM AUTO IS SEIZED ON MILK ST.

One of Mr. Port's runabouts with 120 quarts of liquor started on its young career today up Milk street. Members of the liquor squad bailed the driver.

After several embarrassing questions they peered and saw that the rear end was heavily larded with full bottles.

So they arrested the men in the car who said their names were William Potter of West Canton street, South End, and William Murray of West Sixth street, South Boston. Both were charged with liquor transportation and will be arraigned in court.

Also today the liquor squad raided the premises in the rear of a house on Dorchester avenue, South Boston, and there seized seventy-half pints and fifty pints in bottles and twenty gallons in tins.

Continuing the rampage, the liquor squad arrested one Nando V. Ambrose, in an automobile on Cambridge street. He had one gallon of spirits.

Czar Is In Siberia, Plans Comeback, Says Duchess

London, March 5 (I.N.S.).—Czar Nicholas of Russia is living in concealment in a convent in Siberia, according to the belief of the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, who is in Rome, a Central News despatch from San Remo said today.

Inquiries by the Grand Duchess have elicited facts said to confirm the theory the Czar is alive, awaiting an opportunity to regain the throne, it is said.

Prince Felix Youssouff, credited with killing Rasputin, declares he knows the convent and has been in communication with the former Emperor. Grand Duke Nicholas professes to have seen a recent autograph of the Czar.

However, Grand Duke Cyril, who has proclaimed himself Czar, is strongly opposed to the theory that Nicholas is alive.

WOMAN KILLED IN PLUNGE OF 3 STORIES

Mrs. Lapha Peters, sixty-nine, an inmate of the Cambridge City Home in Tannery street, North Cambridge, was killed today in a three-story fall from a window of the home.

She came to the home from Lowell in 1925, and is believed to have lost her balance while attempting to close a window. She died on the operating table at the Cambridge Municipal Hospital.

Mrs. Mary Fitzpatrick, the matron, had opened the window from the top while the inmates were at breakfast. In attempting to close it, Mrs. Peters raised the lower sill and lost her balance.

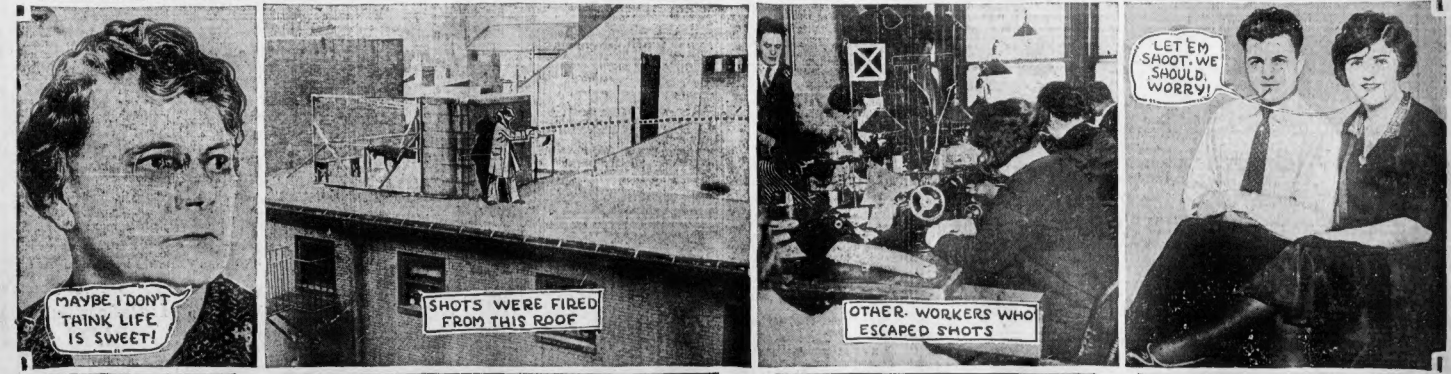

A number of the inmates, returning from the breakfast hall, saw her fall.

SOUTH END GARMENT WORKERS STICK TO BENCHES AFTER BULLET CAUSES NEAR PANIC

MRS. LOUISA C. REED
A bullet hit the wall a foot from her as she was working in the shop at No. 49 Bennett street, South End.

ROOF OF BUILDING FROM WHERE SHOT WAS FIRED
Police armed with riot guns were rushed from the La Grace street station and a thorough search of all roofs in the vicinity was made without success. Samuel Moschier, shop proprietor, believes the man was in the party that fired the shot the day previous.

Mrs. Reed's scream as the bullet pierced the wall near her started a near-panic among the 40 employees. Several others were a few feet from the bullet's path.

ERNEST MARTIN, MRS. ROSE GORDON
Ernest, who lives at No. 310 Princeton street, East Boston, was one of the four the bullet missed. Mrs. Gordon, of No. 118 Devon street, Roxbury, was another.

GRIEF KILLED PARENTS WHEN SON WAS SHOT

Pittsburgh, March 4 (A.P.)—The deaths of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Gump, within three weeks of each other, were attributed today by doctors to grief over the recent killing of their son, L. L. Gump, by payroll robbers.

A few days after the son, a guard, was shot dead at the hands of the robbers who escaped with a $45,000 Pittsburgh Terminal Trust Company payroll, the parents became ill. Mrs. Gump, aged eighty-nine, died three weeks ago. Mrs. Gump, aged eighty-three, succumbed today.

They had been married for sixty-seven years.

ZIZI DECARIES PRINCE IS HER 'LEGAL MATE'

Paris, March 5 (U.S.A.)—Princess Carol's marriage to Zizi Lambrino was not a morganatic marriage, Maitre Albert Salmon, attorney for Mrs. Lambrino, declared today.

M. Salmon said he would make the claim that Mrs. Lambrino is the legal wife of Prince Carol and would back his claim by evidence. "I will prove that Mrs. Lambrino is entitled to full rights as the wife of Prince Carol," said Salmon.

His client has filed suit here seeking damages of 10,000,000 francs from the Rumanian prince in connection with her fight to prove the validity of their marriage.

The attorney intimated that he might attack the legality of Prince Carol's marriage to Princess Helen of Greece, and that he might possibly require into the circumstances of the paternity of Prince Michael, heir of Prince Carol and Princess Helen, and now heir apparent to the throne of Rumania.

M. Salmon, it is said, is prepared to offer evidence which may reflect upon several high personages in Italian royal circles.

Salmon contends that Prince Carol has a personal fortune of $100,000,000, despite reports that he is in debt.

Nearly ten months after a bold escape from Deer Island with 23 other prisoners, Benjamin Scroed, 25, of the North End, was captured today in Worcester.

Scroed escaped while serving 18 months for carrying a revolver. He was recaptured by Patrolman Maurice Hayes of Worcester from circular broadcast through New England by the Deer Island authorities months ago.

According to the police, he admitted his identity after a long struggle. When convicted Scroed was said to have an alias Benjamin Terrapin. He lived in Shasta street, Boston, but also made his home at times in Framingham.

With three other men, all serving who are considered long terms in the harbor institution, Scroed crossed Shirley out to the Winthrop shore in a large tender belonging to the Deer Island Lighthouse keeper and escaped in a driving rain under cover of darkness.

The other men, Frank Connor of Roxbury, Michael J. O'Neil of South Boston and Joseph Verrell, alias Barron, of Roxbury, have not been found.

WANE RUST DRIVES BOY TO HARD ORDEAL

Woburn, N. H., March 5.—The ten-year-old Myron Hall of Melin Village, is frail of body, but he added twenty miles through snow-drifts to satisfy a wanderlust that was all satisfied when he staggered into Woburn.

Meanwhile his mother was distressed and a search party, headed by Deputy Sheriff Frank O. Lavitt, hunted for most of thirty hours that young Myron was missing from home.

In below-zero temperature and with the ground covered with four feet of snow, it was feared the boy would become lost and freeze to death.

Myron left home Wednesday with no money in his possession except some old coins he had as keepsakes. When he tried to call to help drivers but was unheeded.

One man, he told his searchers after being found, put him on a train for Woburn and paid his fare, but the boy got off at the next stop and continued his hike through the snow.

In Woburn he was picked up by a resident, who took him to his home and put the boy to bed. Myron was little the worse for his experience today.

WOOL MILLS IN STRIKE PLAN SHUTDOWN

Would Throw 4,000 More Out of Work in Jersey; Five Near Death in Parade

Pasadena, N. J., March 5 (A.P.)—Operators today had under consideration a proposal for a complete shutdown of woolen mills, while strikers hailed the peaceful parade of 4,000 idle workers as a moral victory over the police who have broken up previous gatherings.

Approximately 7,000 persons are on strike, 4,000 are out of work as a result of the strike, and an additional 4,000 would be affected by a shutdown. A conference of operators to decide on the advisability of a shutdown was asked for today or tomorrow.

The parade, following two days of rioting, was led by Mrs. Elizabeth Kovacs, wheeling her sister's year-old baby in a carriage.

Five newspapermen and photographers narrowly escaped death when their armored car overturned in a collision with another car, and nearly dropped into the Passaic River. Two of the men were injured slightly.

Dr. Harry S. Moore, chairman of the American Civil Liberties Union, wired from New York to Gov. A. Harry A. Moore demanding an in-

THEY HELPED VETS IN HOSPITAL PASS A MERRY HOUR

Agnes Fanning, with lilting voice and twinkling toes, danced for the sick veterans at the bi-weekly program given by the Boston Evening American at the United States Veterans' Hospital.

The Town Taxi Company donated vehicles to carry the stranded entertainers to the hospital. Among them were Naomi Andrews, premier dancer of the Boston Ballet Concerto Company, Kay Barry, Christine Robinson and Margaret M. Guiney.

Francis Fanning, above, sang and danced with her clever sister Agnes. Marion Ogden scored a hit with her songs and waltz. Miss Lilian R. Walsh, South Boston, accompanied entertainers on the piano.

Miss Katherine Lynch with her fiddle, playing old time tunes, recalled Stella Dunham. She also rendered several fine classical numbers on her violin.

vestigation of "police activities against peaceful picketing." He also sent telegrams of protest to the mayors of Passaic and Clifton.

Mrs. Eleanor Nelson Gains, Washington, March 5 (U.S.A.)—Monsieur Nelson, vice-consul of the diocese of Buffalo, who is a pastor in Providence Hospital, was reported to be a little improved today.

SONG AND DANCE GREET VETS IN U. S. HOSPITAL

Joy reigned at United States Veterans' Hospital, West Roxbury, during the course of another first-entertainment under auspices of the Boston Evening American. That the boys who are still battling their wounds health appreciate these bi-weekly shows of the newspaper was "evident from the vociferous applause that greeted each of the troupes."

One of the principal entertainers was Naomi Andrews, premier dancer of the Boston Ballet Concerto Company, who displayed her talent in Russian, ballet and modern dances. All the numbers of this little group were well received. "Kay, Krista & Brownie," known private life as Kay Barry, Christine Robinson and Margaret M. Guiney, made a big hit in their "Lullaby, syncope and harmony."

Marion Ogden's waltz, "The Snows were hoar," was heartily applauded, as were the songs and dances of Agnes and Frances Fanning, a pair of clever sisters.

Miss Katherine Lynch did a "Held in Dunham" with her violin, the archaic old-time fiddle appealing to the ex-servicemen. She also played classical numbers. Miss Lilian R. Walsh of the Broadway, South Boston, accompanied the entertainers and also entertained with piano solos. Up-to-the-minute Town Taxi Company entertained to and from the hospital through the courtesy of the Town Taxi, Inc., officials.

COLD WAVE TO PASS TONIGHT

The cold snap will be tempered to slowly rising temperature late in night or early tomorrow, according to the local forecast. Fair skies will prevail today and tonight, but clouds will hide the sun when the mercury rises. The minimum mercury mark is "bottom for the night was 12 above, but this had risen one degree at an early hour."

An area of low barometric pressure, accompanied by heavy rain, is centered in Colorado and in the north may move on as evening, will fill on the heels of the cold wave in which New England is now enveloped.

The sale came to a conclusion when original "The Watermillers" and "The Old Man" were sold at the Anderson Galleries for $13,935, in which the high price was $2,500, which Governor Fuller of Massachusetts paid for Rembrandt's "An infant in a cradle." Giant Sub Dives at SST's Tomb With 91 Men Aboard

New London, Ct., March 5 (A.P.)—Off Block Island, not many miles from the grave of the submarine S-11, which was sunk in collision last September with 91 of its crew, the VI, biggest of Uncle Sam's submarines, was today to be lowered to the 200-foot level, 50 feet below its previous record.

Three submarine experts were to study her performance during the dive at that depth where the water pressure is 22.5 pounds in the square inch. If it passes the test, it will go into service with the first line submarines.

She carries a crew of seven officers and 84 men. Is 341 feet long and 27.8 feet wide.

MARY MINTER OFFERS AID IN TAYLOR CASE

New York, March 5.—Investigation of the long unsolved William Desmond Taylor murder in 1922 began anew here today with the arrival of Ann G. Grey, district attorney of Los Angeles.

Mary Minter, motion picture actress, talked with the prosecutor over the telephone at length. Minter had called him up voluntarily.

County District Attorney Davidson is here with Grey, and Minter had read in the New York phonebook. He said: "Miss Minter wanted to know that phases of the case we were investigating and asked if she could be of any help to us."

Miss Minter was one of the "very close friends" of the murdered actor.

While Grey is here extensively to "work" the work of the local authorities, it is generally believed he will ask Minter to be in New York. The prosecutor and his assistant, however, refused a definite statement on that point. David stated:

"You may say for Mr. Grey that if Miss Minter cares to get to work with him we will be very glad to talk to her. As to whether he will ask her to see him, I cannot state. Also, it would be impossible to give out any information as to reports that we have a clue to the whereabouts of Edward G. Taylor's former valet. We can give out no more at this time."

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Notable List, Including Many Smart Bostonians, Sailing on S. S. France Tomorrow for Europe

THE STEAMER FRANCE sailing tomorrow for Continental ports, takes out several Bostonians of prominence in a list that is overwhelmingly impressive as to numbers and social significance. Mrs. Rock-Hill Brewster Potts of West Hill Place is to be a passenger on the giant liner when she steams out into the stream from her New York pier.

ALSO A TIO of Boston's younger elite—Dorothy L. Pottman, Jr., John T. N. Kingsley and E. C. Pitts—will sail away for a late winter on the Continent, planning to return this way in the Spring. Norman Fraser is a passenger on the France, also Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Loomis and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Hood.

PHILIP WHARTON is another notable Bostonian of the "Bachelor" class who takes passage on the France for foreign shores. Mr. Ernest L. May is down the steamship's roster, also Charles C. Walbridge of Springfield.

GEORGE L. BACHELDER of Boston and Modford rose over on a most interesting journey. He will in all probability continue to the Adriatic where, on the Italian Coast, there is a yacht being built for him. He, like that other Boston sportsman, Nathaniel Parwell Ayer, of the Eastern Yacht Club, will have a new racing yacht in next summer's contest.

MRS. ROCKHILL POTTS leaves her pet philanthropic effort, the Saturday morning movies for children at the Foster Street Theatre, in the best of hands, as that affair moves on to a sure high financial success. Latest advice from the Society (the Prevention of Cruelty to Children) headquarters predict a joyous morning.

THE NAVY YARD BAND, under Bandmaster Teich's leadership, will put on a half hour program of stirring music before the cinema show opens. The band, a famous organization heretofore, and one of the finest, will lend a picturesque touch of color to the occasion.

MR. and MRS. RICHARD WHITTING REARLE (Adrian Joy Ayer) whose marriage was a notable event of Thursday in Gotham are to make their home at the Hotel Cape-Plan after a wedding journey down the sunlit Florida Coast to Palm Beach for a two months' stay.

BIDAL ATTENDANTS, in the wake of stony coronation

MRS. LEONARD D. ARL, a Palm Beach hostess of conspicuous beauty and charm. The Arls have a Summer home on the North Shore in that smart environment where beautiful estates and much quiet hospitality are watchwords.

tulle topped by large yellow translucent hats, surrounded a bride in the conventional white attire. In a church literally backed with lilacs, roses, orchids, delphinium, and rhododendrons against the green of smilax and palms.

rose point forming a deep berth-like collar and the long court train, a thing of gorgeous beauty over cloudy tulle and baid with the time-honored orange blossoms. Miss Connelio Bates was a bridal attendant, and in the masculine contingent were William Foster, John G. Wright, Quincy Watson, George Henderson, and Roger Griswold, all local men.

TALES OF OPULENT entertainment at Palm Beach continue to wait northward from that centre of carefree gaiety and spectacular Winter life. Quite naturally every one still speaks of the recent costume ball as outstandingly similar to those affairs theretofore.

STAGED IN the Everglades Oranges Garden, overlooking the rippling waters of Lake Worth, beneath a gorgeous tropical moon, it was a scene incomparably beautiful. Over everything was the scent of orange blossoms.

MRS. PRESTON POPE BATTERWHITE, of the Palm Beach colony's high life, was an exquisite figure costumed as Night in radiant blue all shimmering with silver stars. A novel and gleaming head-dress carrying tiny stars on slender threads completed a much admired costume.

ANOTHER GORGEOUS costume creation in the brilliant mass was worn by Mrs. Paris Singer, a Palm Beach society leader. Her choice was the pretty Italian Harlequin mode, expressed by rose pink taffeta and powdered wig, a creation making a beautiful woman even more lovely.

THE HOWARD PARDEES had Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Harding of Boston and New York in their party, also the Robert Jordans of Boston. Here was a specially lovely floral arrangement adorning the Pardee table, done with rare tropical flowers.

MRS. PARDEE was the graceful Marjorie de Pompadour, her ever cloth swinging into a court train of silver, one of those fragile cover-wreathed costumes of the French Court beauty. Her wig of white built high with blossoms was true to the period.

Two of the boys gave their names as Walter M. Crowe, 16, of No. 16 Meridian park, Malden, and Frank Sullivan, 16, of Gale street, Malden. The other boy gave his age as 14.

The troopers were walking along the Fallway when they saw the trio setting a trap. When they started to investigate, the three boys ran, but were arrested after a quarter of a mile chase.

NEXT JUNE'S BRIDE CALLS IT OFF

Miss Ruth Thayer, daughter of Boston and Lancaster, who is reported to have suddenly broken off her engagement to wed Robert G. Rand, prominent New York lawyer and Harvard graduate. The nuptials had been set for next June.

The engagement of Miss Ruth Thayer, daughter of Mrs. Bayard Thayer, of Boston and Lancaster, to Robert G. Rand of New York, has been broken by Miss Thayer, according to a story that is current.

The wedding had been set for June and was being looked forward to as one of the main events in Boston and New York society.

Miss Thayer is the great-granddaughter of Stephen Van Rensselaer of Albany and the great-granddaughter of Killian Van Rensselaer, son of Albany.

Her mother, who was Miss Ruth Thayer, is a member of an old Cape Cod family. Miss Thayer is a member of the Chilton and Vincent clubs and a former president of the Junior League of Boston.

Mr. Rand was graduated from St. Mark's school in 1918, from Harvard College in 1921, and from Harvard Law School in 1924. During the war he served in the navy aboard the U. S. S. Harvard, and is now a member of the law firm of Jerome A. Rand in New York City.

POLICE ARREST 'DIP' SUSPECT

O'Malley, mingling with a crowd boarding a subway car, asserts he saw Levine, who was known to him by sight, attempting to pick the pocket of a man in the crowd.

GIRL SAVED AS 'FAG' FIRES BED

Miss Reta Currier, 21 years old, of Suite 1, No. 31 Beekman street, Black Bay, was overcome by smoke, which caused her to be moved to the Black Bay police station for medical treatment, when a fire broke out in her room.

According to the police, Miss Currier, in bed, was smoking a cigarette, when it fell, kindling the bed curtains. Almost instantly the bed was a mass of flames.

Her screams attracted the attention of pedestrians who assisted an alarm.

Several police officers and firemen were rushed into the burning apartment to reach Miss Currier's suite.

The damage to the apartment is estimated by police to be about $150.

FOOTBALL STAR "ACCUSED IN HOLDUP"

Medford Boy and College Athlete Arrested by Malden Police

Harold Leahy, 24, said to have been a former 160-lb. cross football star, and who is a member of a prominent Medford family, was arrested by Malden police on a charge of robbery while armed in connection with the holdup last September of William Hatch, 44 Wyeth street, Malden.

Police say Hatch identified Leahy as one of three men who held him up in his garage at the point of a revolver and rifled his pockets of $425 in cash and two check books showing deposits of $1,000.

Young Leahy was admitted to $1,000 bail made by his father, John Leahy, wealthy restaurant owner, for his appearance this morning in Malden District Court.

Leahy is a graduate of Medford High where he was prominent in athletics.

MANNING FLAYS "HIGH SOCIETY" DIVORCEES

Urges Catholic, Protestant and Jewish Unity to Stamp Out Evil

New York, March 5 (A.P.)—Condemning many high social leaders as setting morally destructive examples, Bishop William T. Manning of the diocese of New York believes that the time has come for church unity to stamp out the evils of divorce.

In a Lenten sermon Bishop Manning asserted that many, too many, in modern divorces were leading directly to the abolition of matrimony and the substitution of polygamy.

"I think the time has come when all churches—Catholic, Protestant and Jewish—should join in common effort for the preservation of marriage and the home," he said.

The bishop quoted figures showing one divorce for every five marriages in Ohio, one to 2.5 in Texas, one to 3.4 in Michigan and 1,000 divorces to every 300 marriages in Nevada. "There is no one divorce to every seven marriages," he said.

"One of the worst evils of our time," he said, "is the universal irreconcilable, morally destructive example given by those who are well-to-do and who have every advantage of education and whose influence should count for higher things."

Several divorces or separation suits which have held public attention recently have ended in reconciliations. Mr. and Mrs. James A. Sullivan are in Europe on a second honeymoon. The name of Marguerite Bonham's actress was cleared when Mrs. William K. Manton withdrew her divorce suit against her son-in-law, and there is a prospect that Robert Hagen, son of a former president of the American Tobacco Company, will be reconciled with Mrs. E. Lee Hagan. In other cases, separation suits now being heard.

Manton withdrew her divorce suit against her son-in-law, and there is a prospect that Robert Hagen, son of a former president of the American Tobacco Company, will be reconciled with Mrs. E. Lee Hagan. In other cases, separation suits now being heard.

Several divorces or separation suits which have held public attention recently have ended in reconciliations. Mr. and Mrs. James A. Sullivan are in Europe on a second honeymoon. The name of Marguerite Bonham's actress was cleared when Mrs. William K. Manton withdrew her divorce suit against her son-in-law, and there is a prospect that Robert Hagen, son of a former president of the American Tobacco Company, will be reconciled with Mrs. E. Lee Hagan. In other cases, separation suits now being heard.

CRUDE BUNGALOW ALARM

"SQUEALING" ON YOUTH

Brookline, March 5.—A home-made burglar alarm system got George Yarnes, 17, of No. 143 Summer street, into the District Court on a charge of attempted larceny. Following a series of thefts in the factory of the C. S. Pierce Company, a carpenter employed there rigged up a string, attached to his clothing, the string in turn being attached to a place of iron over a sink.

The string was so arranged that when the clothing was touched the iron weight would drop into the sink.

G.O.P. SPARS FOR TIME ON DEBT

Washington, March 5 (A.P.)—President Coolidge was forced again today to send out an "urgent" call to Democrats in the Senate to prevent the defeat of a major item in the administration's program—the Italian debt agreement.

As in the World Court and the ratification issues it will be only by Democratic votes that the administration can win.

Convinced by private talks that the Italian agreement was voted on in the Senate, the administration leaders have abandoned their plan of bringing up the matter as soon as Mr. Clegg is discharged and it appeared today that it will be March 15, at least, before the debt is voted.

Meanwhile under the surface and in the cloakroom and behind the most sanguine of the press, the administration is working to bring up the matter as soon as Mr. Clegg is discharged and it appeared today that it will be March 15, at least, before the debt is voted.

Chicago, March 5 (A.P.)—Mayor Cermak, declaring himself "vigorously against" over a reform organization's appeal for congressional investigation of Chicago, has announced he is "going down in their true light those who in the past have lived passing the hat."

BEATRICE BURTON
Author of 'GILDED KISSES'

The Love Story of a Boston Girl Who Wants Only One Man--and the Husband Who Strayed

READ THIS FIRST:
SYLVIA STARR has been engaged to marry RANDALL PHILIPS for nearly a year when he suddenly asks her to break their engagement. He tells her with brutal frankness that he has fallen in love with her best friend, FAY SHELLEY.

Sylvia, who had never dreamed of this new attachment, gives him up, much to the satisfaction of her AUNT AGNES, ("Aunt Agnes"), who has raised her from her orphaned babyhood. "Aunt Agnes" thinks Ranny a very good-for-nothing, anyway, and urges Sylvia to marry PETER WILK, a sober-minded bachelor. But Sylvia knows she never will care for anyone but Ranny Phelps.

As the time for his marriage to Fay draws near, Fay confesses to Sylvia that she and Ranny don't love each other half so much as they thought they did. And Sylvia discovers that she is seeing a great deal of her old beau, EDDIE CARTER.

On a moonlit May night, Peter gives a picnic supper in the woods in honor of Sylvia's twenty-second birthday. Fay and Ranny arrive late, and Ranny tells Sylvia that he and Fay have been having a couple of little drinks of gin to celebrate the end of their love affair! He says he really has never cared for anyone but Sylvia and she recklessly suggests that they elope that very night! And they do.

Toward the end of their honeymoon, which they spend at a quiet little New Hampshire country inn, Ranny receives a letter from Fay and refuses to show it to Sylvia. He begins to be restless and unhappy, and at the end of the first week suggests that they go back to town. Hurt because he has so soon tired of her, Sylvia packs up their belongings. She finds Fay's letter in one of Ranny's coat pockets, and, almost without thinking what she is doing, puts it into her handbag.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)
(CHAPTER IX.)
The long drive back to town from the little town of their honeymoon was a very one.

Ranny's roadster came along the New Hampshire road with a sleepy sound like the humming of some enormous fly, and Sylvia, lulled by the smooth steady motion lay back in the corner of her seat with half shut eyes.

Now and then they showed their violet glint for an instant when she took a furtive sideways glance at this man she had married--this man she had known ever since she had been knee-high to a grasshopper--this husband of hers who was a total stranger to her, somehow or other.

What did she really know about him, she wondered. Nothing. For instance she had never dreamed that he was tired of her and of being alone with her, until this very morning when he had made it so plain. There had been no work of tenderness and passion in the last kiss he had given her, when they had welcomed in the quiet, starry dawn only a few hours ago.

She looked at him again. His hat was off and the soft rumbling wind ruffled his thick blond hair. She had a sudden wild longing to smother it down with her two hands, and lay him just there, under the clean curve of his jaw.

But that was the very thing she had feared. She was the very thing she had feared.

QUEEN'S COUNSEL

by Queen of Mystery

NAMING THE CHILDREN

Did you ever as a child ponder over the sound of names? My sister and I used to class names into two categories--light names and dark names. Mary, we decided, was light. So were Grace, Nancy, Rose, Harry, Dick and John. But Helena, Catherine, Stephen, Rachel, Rupert, had to go into a darker sound. We did not mean sinister or mournful, but as color these names would have been purple, dark green, peacock blue.

Old gold. They would have been soft and glowing in contrast to the light names, which were a soft lemon, pink or mauve. Children should never be given names that may in later life embarrass them.

I have a dear friend who studies names as a mystical science. "Numerology," it is an old, old science, he says, to be used in the Bible and still older books. Its followers believe that a child's name, calculated according to the time of his birth, doubles his strength, improves his health and mentality, allows him to fulfill his greatest possibilities.

My friend resumes those who leave according to the dictates of her own whimsy figuring and declares she has seen wonderful changes, miracles or regeneration, when the person is given even late in life the name he should have. I have not studied this science, but have always loved names. With me it was more a matter of harmory. I simply could not see some people as Sophy, Mathilda, Joseph and if they were near and dear to me I gave them in my heart the names I thought they deserved.

In the stories I write I invent names as a musician composes a chord, creating a sound of strength, longing, waitfulness, tenderness or cruelty, according to the character I would portray. The young queen in my last finished book has called Irvana because it responded to something misty, yearning, spiritual, in her nature.

I was not always able to name my own children as I wished, especially my first, Carol, for in those earlier years I was still strictly under the family sway. But I felt very decidedly about it for that.

To give a prince the right name is important. It should be sympathetic, inspiring, congenial to his people.

For my second son and fourth child I chose the name of Nicolas because he is one of the popular saints in the Roman calendar and St. Nicolas Day one of the feasts dearest to his hearts.

My two youngest I called Ileana and Mitrea because they were popular names; Ileana the name of the fairy who appears in their most cherished folktale; Mitrea the hero of their ancient history. My people loved these children with particular possessiveness because of these purely Rumanian names.

HUB GIRLS RING BELL ON SMOCK

Smocks have been marked as far as hundreds of Boston young women are concerned. The women employees of many of the Hub's largest offices have cast their smocks into the ash heap with the rest of the rubbish and gone back to their low-necked and short-sleeved dresses.

And it all came about when the girls suddenly discovered that the men wouldn't even give them the way when the smocks were clad in the Greenfield Village smock.

"We thought the smocks would make us look like artists," said one girl. "But instead they made us look like dumbbells."

It was a great lark for many of the girls to don smocks at first. Then they came to the realization that they were also as attractive as a row of hoppers and they began to figure out a way to get rid of them.

The reputation of smocks as the rural, neat has spread all over the city and within a few days it is predicted that smocks will be as common as flies on an iron deer.

GOOD NEWS

Nine Extra Years of Life

HEALTH is improving—

disease is decreasing—life is lengthening. You and your family have a better chance to live long and happily than people ever had before in the history of the world.

Splendid gains have been made in the United States and Canada within the last thirteen years. Stated in an insurance man's language, five years have been added to the average expectation of life.

But more encouraging—in the same period, nearly nine years were added to the life expectation of Metropolitan Industrial Policyholders—a gain, over the general average, of four extra years.

How was this done?—Largely through the inspiring work of our Metropolitan men and women. They sent trained nurses to the homes of millions of sick Policyholders. They fought disease and taught the well how to keep well.

Your Health in 1926

Use the helps offered by medical science to prevent disease. You need never fear typhoid. Inoculation will prevent it. Your children need never have diphtheria. Toxin-antitoxin treatments will safeguard them. Smallpox will not touch your family if all are vaccinated when necessary. One by one, dread diseases are being conquered. In ten years the tuberculosis death rate has been reduced more than one-half. Five years ago the diphtheria death rate alone was higher than that today for diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough combined.

FREDERICK H. ECKER, Vice-President

Send for a Life Table

Have you ever seen the figures shown in Life Tables that tell the average life expectations for each age? While these tables may not apply to you individually, they do apply to the composite you—you and all the other tens of thousands at your age.

Send for a Life Table so that you may see how many years it allows to persons of your age. It will be mailed free on request together with a list of many free booklets prepared by the Metropolitan, covering the cause and prevention of almost every disease by which you are threatened.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company cordially invites all of its friends and neighbors to share and use the knowledge that is conquering disease and building longer, happier lives.

NOVEL RADIO STUDIO OPENS SATURDAY

Boston's best and most complete broadcasting studio will officially go on the air with special radio programs Saturday afternoon and evening, when, by direct telephone line, the new Houghton & Dutton studio will be dedicated through WEEL.

Unlike other local studios, the three sides facing into the main store are of plate glass so that the visitors to the sixth floor may see exactly what is going on and they may watch their favorite artist in action. Back of the studio is an office for the broadcasting staff, and on the front or stage side, with large plate glass windows, is the operating or control room. Here again the visitors may witness the operator

Baked Not Boiled

The Heinz way of baking beans is the home way. Every bean inspected and only the perfect ones used. Every bean thoroughly baked in real ovens with dry heat. Every bean full of nourishment and a flavor that only oven-baking can produce. Oven-baked—not boiled—that's the Heinz way—the home way. Read the label—if the label says baked beans the beans are really baked.

Dancing Charleston Aids Hurdlers, Says College Champ

Dick Murphy Tells How to Train for Big Meets

This is the first of a series of articles on the hurdles as told by John P. (Dick) Murphy of Boston College, a joint holder of the indoor and outdoor 45-yard hurdles championships and New England Interscholastic 120-yard high hurdle champion. These articles will appear exclusively in the Boston Evening American.

By DICK MURPHY
As told to Bill Connolly
WITH the single exception of the pole vault, the hurdles are by far the most beautiful spectacle of the track and field games.

There is a symmetry of motion in the hurdles that makes for the beautiful. This applies to both the high and low hurdles, although the former is the prettier of the two and also the harder.

The high hurdles require more versatility in the runner. The hurdler must not alone be a hurdler, but he must also be a high jumper and dash with the best of the jumpers and dash men. Earl Thompson, the Dartmouth star, is a very good example of this point.

"Tommy" could come close to the six-foot mark in the high jump and was good for 10 in the 100-yard dash. In the hurdles, Thompson was breaking record after record during his last three years in college. A meet was not successful in three days if Thompson did not supply a sensational race.

The low hurdles need speed alone, the hurdler not being high enough to better the runner a great deal. In the high hurdles it is different. One cannot take them in stride, as in the low hurdles. He has to get his three steps in before every hurdle, retain his balance and have a final sprint ready for the dash at the finish.

Because the hurdles are so strenuous, the hurdler must be in the pink of condition, in even better condition than the dash man or the distance runner.

The high hurdler must be in perfect condition and must stay in perfect condition. He can't relax a bit. He must be careful of his sleeping and eating.

He needs plenty of sleep, about nine hours per night. Exhaustion is the minimum. Eight hours of sleep seems to be an easy thing to get. It is during training seasons, but during the indoor meet season it is almost an impossibility.

There is no special diet for the hurdler that I know of. Keep away from food that does not pay and just an ordinary amount of cake or other sweets. Too much sweets puts the stomach out of condition. The stomach should be in perfect condition for good hurdling because the

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 5.—Archie Kelsor, the Winehouse pitcher who started training yesterday, says that he's half Indian and half Irish.

He should help the ball club, as Irish Indians have always been famous for their hitting possibilities. Archie was hurt in an automobile accident several months ago, and the bones in his pitching hand were mangled up so much that he didn't think he could play ball this year.

He recovered away ahead of schedule and is apparently perfectly ready to go. I don't see a war wound or a mangled hand, but the appearance of the noble redskin depicted on the old pennant.

ONE of the best looking kids on the squad is Bill Cronin, the catcher, who seems to be ready to jump into the big show. I have more power than a French chef and can throw the ball around as if it were a gun on his right shoulder.

Frank Gibson says the best throwing kid catcher he has ever seen. Bill is a happy, carefree citizen who joined the Worcester club because he likes baseball. He played for two weeks without having any idea what his salary was. He has a great deal of nerve. He cratches the glove at the fights here by posing as the ground-keeper. Cops and everybody else much respect. He's got along in the university.

B. A. A. to Use Harvard Stars Against 'Peres'

By BILL GRIMES

Reinforced by three Harvard players, the Boston Athletic Association is out to pull themselves up to within two points of Pere Marquette this evening at the Boston Arena. The "crusaders" are leading the league and a victory this evening will practically clinch the championship for them. But with the Union playing Izzy Zarnkov, Johnnie Chase and Bill Ellison along with their regular array of talent, Pere Marquette has the toughest assignment of the season on their hands.

The B. A. A. has come in for a great deal of criticism since the recent game out that they were going to play three "rings" in this important league game. The rule of the league is that a player must have his application in for ten days before he is allowed to participate in a game. Jack Cuhane and Bill Ellison were played in a game earlier in the season without having received the sanction of the league. It is said and the game, which the "crusaders" won was awarded to the Knickerbockers and charged as a loss against Pere Marquette.

Beatrice Fairfax Says It's All Up to the Woman

By Beatrice Fairfax, Who Occupies a Unique Position in the Writing World as an Authority on Problems of Love and Life year 1925 saw marvelous progress in the advancement of woman.

In China, Japan, India, Persia, Turkey—the woman everywhere gained more freedom. In America they progressed steadily, taking honors in the arts and sciences, in literature, business and the professions but in America last year the marriage rate declined slightly.

Does this mean that women fear marriage may interfere with their freedom, self-expression, and individuality?
I have one opinion about who is deciding of course that the moment a woman weds and takes her husband's name she sacrifices her individuality in his and that the average man wishes to absorb his wife's personality.

The Letter

"Dear Miss Fairfax," she writes.
"Every comment pertaining to the marriage relation is so revealing of the fact that woman was formerly submerged, subject and absorbed. The idea on the part of the husband was
"We two are one and I am fit to be —quite capable."

The matter of assuming a husband's name is nothing more or less than a symbol of subjection. But women who value their name and identity sufficiently to wish to retain it after marriage, are not ready to chafe the beginning of a transition.

They are individuals, recognize themselves as such and wish to be recognized as individuals. They want marital affection if anyone were to call a man "Mr. Jane Brown's," the significance of the action would loom clear and potent.

Is this case better when a woman takes her husband's name, losing out on recognition, hereafter, of the wife as an individual?
"Marriage customs are not too
new, but only that a man is a wife
and who her husband is."

Many of our wedding and marriage customs have their roots in that ancient age when the custom kidnaped the woman he wished as his mate and that when age grew
as heavy when fathers said their daughters like slaves into marriage.

But Miss 1925 isn't kidnaped, and she's not sold into marriage if she takes a name of power and personality. On the contrary, she marries the man she loves because she loves
him and believes that marrying him
would be a good thing to do.

Women of Character
Today's marriage is not a free either side, but a free, frank partnership, a true friendship and personal companionship, the uniting of the lives of a man and a woman who love, respect and trust
each other. Neither husband nor wife takes on a "boss" in modern marriage.

Wives of very successful men
are usually women of the character and interesting individuals. Their mothers of great men often tell
the day of it as the first love of Chatterbox, have almost all the
out exception being women of distinct and lovely personality.

The experience of wisdom and motherhood, fulfilling your nature and destiny as a woman, will grow out and develop the finest traits of your individuality through unselfish love. "Through wisdom and advice, a woman who will not hood a poor woman richer in highest individuality and become an infinitely inspiring and guiding influence.

Avoid Poorly Balanced Breakfasts

Start the day with Quaker Oats
—food that "stands by" you.

If you feel tired, hungry, "fidgety," 10 hours before lunch, don't jump to the conclusion of poor health.
Thousands have unenergetic mornings because they start the day with poor breakfasts.

To feel right, you must have a well-balanced, complete breakfast. Include at most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder, 58% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamins and the "B" that makes the digestive acid needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. That's faster than plain oatmeal. Don't yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers you.

ANIMATED STYLE SKELETONS WORRY FAY KING

ALTHOUGH the comic artists and witty wisecracker will get no end of material out of the fact that skeletons are being introduced to help up women's new fashions, I noticed the divided skirt, and I had with delight any style that will do away with the staidness the gown women have been starving down to

A strap over the shoulder is a good thing to hang a skirt to and also rather bands that stop cir-

"So that's what they told you?"
Jeanie's voice rose to a crescendo of scornful bitterness as she spoke.
And then she looked at the girl who was sitting next to her, and said: "And you believe that?"

"Yes, I believe it," she said. "I believe it because I have seen it in the lives of the women I know."

"Marriage customs are not too
new, but only that a man is a wife

Many of our wedding and marriage customs have their roots in
that ancient age when the custom
kidnaped the woman he wished as
his mate and that when age grew
as heavy when fathers said their
daughters like slaves into marriage.

But Miss 1925 isn't kidnaped, and
she's not sold into marriage if she takes a name of power and personality. On the contrary, she marries
the man she loves because she loves
him and believes that marrying him
would be a good thing to do.

Women of Character
Today's marriage is not a free
either side, but a free, frank
partnership, a true friendship and
personal companionship, the uniting of the lives of a man and a
woman who love, respect and trust
each other. Neither husband nor wife takes on a "boss" in modern
marriage.

Wives of very successful men
are usually women of the character
and interesting individuals. Their mothers of great men often tell
the day of it as the first love of Chatterbox, have almost all the
out exception being women of distinct and lovely personality.

Pointers and Recipes From Martha Lee's Pen

Exchange Day

Not a bad thing I use up chatting to you today. I want every bit of space for some especially interesting recipes which have been contributed by my friends.

The first comes from Mrs. G. F.
McKee, 124 Cottage Street, New Bedford, Mass., and is a recipe for "Spanish Bun Cake," which she brought from Wilmington, Del., last summer.
I have found it exceptionally good,
especially if made with milk flour:

SPANISH BUN CAKE.
1 large cup of sugar.
1/2 cup butter and lard.
2 eggs yolks.
1 teaspoon soda in 3-3 cup sour milk.
1 tablespoon molasses.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.
1/2 teaspoon cloves.
1/2 teaspoon allspice.
1/2 teaspoon baking powder in 1/4 cups flour.

Mix in order given. Use a hard leaven. Bake in greased pan in a kettle of boiling water, salted, half for 30 minutes, drain, place
in a greased pan, and bake in
a white sauce, 1 tablespoon butter,
1 tablespoon flour in sauce-
pan, mix and add 1 pint scalded milk,
a little salt and pepper and stir constantly for 10 minutes. Cook slowly to avoid lumping. Four sauce cups cauliflower, sprigs
also over a half of buttered bread crumbs; and bake in brown, even about 15 minutes, or till the bread is a delicate
brown.

I am watchfully waiting for more of these treasures. Won't you take your favorites out of your files and share them with the thousands of sister housewives who wish for this column each day?
Be sure tomorrow.

BAKED CAULIFLOWER.
After washing cauliflower, cut off the outer leaves and leave the head in a little of water, boiling water, salted,
half for 30 minutes, drain, place
in a greased pan, and bake in
a white sauce, 1 tablespoon butter,
1 tablespoon flour in sauce-
pan, mix and add 1 pint scalded milk,
a little salt and pepper and stir
constantly for 10 minutes. Cook slowly to avoid lumping. Four
sauce cups cauliflower, sprigs
also over a half of buttered
bread crumbs; and bake in
brown, even about 15 minutes,
or till the bread is a delicate
brown.

BAKED FILET OF HADDOCK.
1 1/2 pounds of filets of haddock.
1/2 cup onion.
Butter.
Salt and pepper and paprika.
Balls to cover.

Butter a baking dish with butter and onion. Place the filets in the dish, and bake in a moderate oven for 15 minutes. Drain the fat, and add 1/2 cup of milk, 1/2 cup of cream, 1/2 cup of butter, 1/2 cup of onion, 1/2 cup of paprika, 1/2 cup of salt, and 1/2 cup of pepper.
Stir well, and pour over the filets. Bake for 15 minutes more.
Serve with a tomato sauce.

This recipe with creamed potatoes and four groups
Stewed tomatoes also go well with this dish.
And serve something distinctly tasty.

Etiquette at Wedding

By Mrs. Cornelius Beckman
DEAR MRS. BECKMAN:

My father and mother are expected. I am going to have a church wedding.

(1) Would it be proper to come in to the church on the arm of my brother if I have him as my best man?

(2) Would it be correct to have one of my sisters as bridesmaid and the other as maid of honor?

(3) How should they come in at church?

No, this would not be correct. If your brother is best man, he is then the attendant of the groom, and is not your attendant. He enters the church with the groom, at a side door, and together they go to the vestry room or some other room at the front of the church. There they wait with the clergyman, until they are informed that you and your attendant have arrived at the church.
Then they come into the church—using the door at the front of the church. The clergyman comes first, then the groom and a step or two behind him, the best man.

I suggest that you have your brother present you in marriage, and ask the groom to invite his own brother or his best friend, if he has no brother, to be his best man. Then you would come down the aisle on the arm of your brother and meet the groom and his best man at the front of the church.

Yes, this is customary.
(3) If you have sisters, they come first. Then comes the bridesmaid, waiting alone. Then the maid of honor, walking alone for you may have them walk together. Then you come, walking in with your brother or sister.

DAILY SHORT STORY

MEN MUST WORK By Louis Arthur Cunningham

Helen threw aside the sock she had been darned and decided, with a posit of pretty life, to do no more. The business of winchwood—it had come to be a business, she told herself pityingly—tired her. It really, in old routine was harder, more distasteful because she was a romantic little person to whom the first months of life with Tom Braden had been a dip into stardom happiness.
"I'm weary, weary," she said pettishly. "Cooking, cleaning, mending, doing anything—this is my existence. Tom has his affairs, his parents, I have a million and four romas. Beyond that... nothing."
The afternoon, with the aid of Byron, dragged along. But the dust lay undisturbed, the floors un swept, the food unsupplied. She sat numbly till five minutes before his coming; then she got up and slipped her shoes off, and, since he was only a human being with his day's work done, sat down to supper without reciting any Byronic stanza or going into raptures of love.
Meal Wretched.
The meal was wretched. She waited for a complaint. Tom, as though it were a birthday banquet and said the tea was delicious and was bored. She valued her would scold her. She had a job to do if he did. With the sublime incongruity of her sex, she was furious now because he was polite after supper he lit his pipe and undressed. Tom, it was, Byron sat down to a book in the study living-room. He did not read Byron. It was a collection of impressionistic free-verses that belonged to Helen and, having a true sense of humor, Tom chuckled frequently. Helen's nerves were frayed and, when a good intentioned effort to make the supper, he spilled pepper on the rug, she could have screamed at him. Instead she went to answer a phone.
"Mab Carvill," she said with her hand over the mouthpiece, "wants us to come over for a little break. Tom nodded resignedly. "All right, Helen."
Helen's mouth grew hard. "We can't be over, Mab. I'm awfully sorry but we just can't make it." She hung up promptly.
Tom closed the book and stared at her with awestruck eyes. "Why, Helen? What's the matter? Why can't we go?"
Sat Unseeing.
She faced him coldly. "You'd better not. You prefer to sit here and smoke your silly old pipe, and eat and sleep, and laugh like an idiot over a book. It's yours a for fun to move. You're busy all day, you come here to rest at night and you take me for granted, as though I were a chair or any old piece of furniture. I'm sick of it," she said and disappeared.
If this is the happiness you promised me, I'm through."

President Coolidge and the Flurries in Wall Street

With the wild news from Wall Street on Tuesday there went humming over the wires a calm, clear message from the White House.

This message was that the industry of 115,000,000 Americans was unimpaired, that the livelihood of the American people was well assured, and that the great business of producing and distributing the goods by which we all exist was going forward as prosperously as ever.

Mr. Coolidge has a cool head and a steady heart. Even if he had shown no evidence before, he gave it when he made this statement.

When the prices of securities melt away and some 14,000,000 security holders feel uncertainty in the air, all sorts of strange fears begin to course through the country. If they pass unchecked they go far to injure confidence, and injured confidence is just what is least desired in the United States just now.

For this reason Mr. Coolidge's assurance is timely. It is not only timely but it is true. Two kinds of panics bring bad business, unemployment and hard times. The one kind is a money panic. It is commonly known as a money squeeze.

The other kind is an industrial panic. It begins in the factory rather than in the money market. It stifles production and occupation and fills the streets with wretched men.

Is either kind of panic forecast from Wall Street today? Is there any scarcity of money or capital for business in the United States? No. Money and credit are ready at low rates for all decent business. They have been ready at low rates even during the Stock Exchange flurries of the last few days.

In these days of the great workshop of the United States—the greatest workshop in the world? No; the 115,000,000 Americans are producing and buying and selling the goods as they seldom, if ever, have produced and sold and bought them in peace times.

Are there signs that the American people and the American business men and American workmen are going to cease doing these things? Or that the foreign markets for their goods are fading away? Or that with 1,500,000 more population every year the nation will call for less food, fewer clothes and less shelter? Or that the 26,000,000 American families are about to lower their standard of living and go without the necessities and comforts which are the merchants' stock in trade? Or that the working machine which produces the great mass of this stock in trade is about to slow down, causing idleness and loss where today there are employment and wages and profit?

In recent years there has been no time when such signs were so few—in fact, when such signs were hardly discernible. Almost every business man of nation-wide vision and reputation has confirmed this statement. Since January 1, scarcely a day has passed without some public speech or interview to this effect.

Why, then, the flurries of the Stock Exchange, the so-called barometer?

Because the barometer has been artificially rigged and tampered with; because many security prices have been pushed far beyond the dividend-earning power of the industries behind them; because ordinary common stocks have been forced up by speculators until they have yielded less on the investment than bonds; because the whole business of selling and buying securities has been conducted on the theory that, rich and prosperous as we are, our riches and prosperity are bound to grow from hour to hour like the morning glories of a Summer day.

These are a few of the reasons. They are not to be denied.

Moreover, there are many others that are just as sound—just as undeniable. That such a welter of false calculations and speculation has got to end has been realized by sober men for months. And it is time.

As he looks out upon the vast and substantial prosperity of this great nation, whose first citizen he is, Mr. Coolidge is able to compare great things with small. He is able to realize how powerless is a passing shock to shake the deep foundations on which the American people rest their industry, employment, commerce and finance.

He sees and he knows. And, seeing and knowing, he gives out his message of confidence at the time it is needed by those of feeble faith.

He could not have chosen a better moment for speaking the words of truth and soberness.

Save Relief Hospital

Alcoholic Cases Should Not Interfere With Prompt Treatment of Accidents

The plan to transfer alcoholic cases from the City Hospital to the Haymarket Relief Hospital is meeting with considerable opposition.

For fifty years Boston fought to get an emergency hospital, and now there is a possibility that it will not be able to operate as such. There are only 27 beds in the Relief Hospital, which has an average of 107 admissions per day.

The institution serves a large area in the northern district of Boston, including the waterfront, the North and South Streets. The thousands of employees in that section, all liable to injury, are entitled to emergency service. We hope this service will not be overlooked in solicitous care of alcoholics.

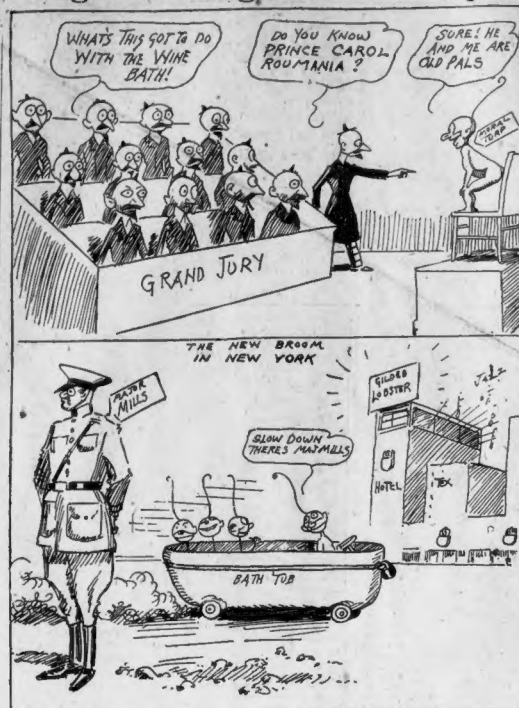

Libelling Ancestors

It Can't Be Done

Jim Bridger, famous Indian scout, is shown, in a moving picture, married to Indian wife, drinking too much whiskey, etc. An indignant descendant of Bridger brings suit for a million dollars' damage for the libel on her ancestor and the disgrace to her.

Judge Reed, of the Federal Court, says you can't recover on an ancestor's damaged reputation. That's a wise decision. All the motions, except perhaps ancestors of the Digger Indians and a few other miserable races, were once all cannibals, all killers, and utterly unlike the refined descendants of this day.

SPECIAL AND GENERAL EDUCATION

By Garrett P. Serviss, Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

WHAT are you going to be? Have you any thought about the way you will pass your time on this planet? Then you must consider what your education shall be. In the suburban borough in which I live the great bulk of thorough expenditure is for school purposes. I have no doubt but that that is the case generally. And, of course, it is right.

Leopoldus, the Spartan legislator, who is generally thought to have lived nearly three thousand years ago, even then declared that the education of youth was the greatest and most glorious work of a legislator. "ask," says Plutarch, "he began with it at the very source by requiring marriage."

Where to Begin

That was a plain hint as to where the work of education ought to be done. But the old Spartan plan differed from ours. In that parents were not at liberty to educate their children as they pleased. On reaching the age of seven they were sent to a common school, and exercised and trained in common. These were the days when fighting was the greatest occupation. They didn't make things—though they claimed that they made men. And, indeed, they did make the "Three Hundred," of whom for centuries every Greek spoke reverently. "Who they sleep at Thermopylae."

The Spartan nurse who had charge of the earlier years, were one to Liverpool. And they were so excellent that the proud Athenians were happy if they could get a Spartan nurse for their children.

The Spartans specialized in war and directed their public education accordingly. We pretend to specialize in peace, but the occupations of peace are so manifold that they call for a wide variety of specialization.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "WHAT MAKES A GENTLEMAN?"

DO WOMEN MAKE MEN? OF COURSE THEY DO. WOMEN ARE ALWAYS making men happy, or glad, or gay. BUT SOMETIMES, soft hands have pulled a man DOWN, into a state of FAILURE into a state of SUCCESS. VICE VERSA. Or changing one from a LOVER into a HUSBAND (though few husbands are ever changed from a LOVER into a HUSBAND). BUT to make a man a GENTLEMAN requires but ONE thing. WOMAN. His Mother.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

"WHY is a Wild Cat?" asks this Defiant Lady.

But how much more marvelous it would be if said cat weren't wild! Which same is going to be the gist of our rude but necessary conversation.

"Dear Elsie: I was one of those to be pitied individuals who thought there were a few men in this world who stepped to the altar clean and undisturbed. Then the first shock came when the husband of a dear friend, a man apparently above reproach, with a deep affection for his wife, baby and home, was caught red-handed, unfaithful to his wife."

"The second shock came when I learned that my fiancé had sowed a few wild oats as far as women were concerned before I came along."

"It was a swift jolt for me and, while I 'made up' still there lurks in the innermost depths of my heart the fear, the suspicion, that he will again seduce a company of other women."

"But, Elsie, somehow, I can't let me be happy and I want you to tell me four ideas. I want merely to know this Defiant Lady."

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

NOTHING so annoys a man as woman's eternal sentimentalism.

He simply CANNOT see why she expects him to write her stage letters, when he can compress his whole passion into a ten-word telegram, or say it "with poet's curde."

He can't understand why she expects him to remember, and Helen Rowland—verses and other things—the dress she wore when he first met her, or the color of her eyes, or the first time he kissed her.

This is the White Man's Burden—woman's starving soul's Woman's whether there can be a comeback by a man who has let go of his self respect before. Without question there are exceptions but after all, men are alike. I have always said I would stand almost anything in married life but infidelity. Am I not taking a big chance if I marry this man?

"A SQUIBBING MIND."

Are you taking a big chance if you marry this man? Yes, dearie, you are. And he's also taking a big chance if he marries you.

These men you criticize for being faithless to Pure Blue Ladies are not in reality being faithless to pure, blue ladies at all. They are simply being faithful to a custom of life and a habit of emotion which is several millions times older than civilization.

So suppose you stop looking for dirt and begin to broaden and sweeten your whole mental outlook. For, take it from me, Sister, it's just as much against God's law of purity and progress to be continually thinking wrong about another as it is to be indulging in a little of it now and then yourself.

SOME RECENT NORDIC NONSENSE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THERE has been a race of late in the press a good deal of literature extolling the Nordics. These are a people supposed to be superior to all others.

They are operating actively in Germany at present, and the blue-blooded Nordics are looking down with contempt upon some kings, emperors and princes who do not measure up to their standard. They discard many owners of flimsy titles because their blood is not spotless.

The "New Book of Edits," or the "Iron Book of German Nobility and Germanic Origin" declares that even the best-sounding names mean nothing.

The Dutch, Flemish, Scandinavian and Anglo-Saxons may be admitted to the ranks of true aristocrats, and also the old nobility of France, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Poland and Hungary, if their blood is not mingled with the inferior elements.

The standing of Americans seems to be peculiarly shaky owing to the many elements that enter into America's population, but if they prove they are real Nordics they are all right.

Countheim von Hog-ogration, the temporary sweetest-humored of Millicent Rogers, for instance, cannot get a place among the elect because one of his ancestors a century ago married a Jewess.

These Nordic enthusiasts want a purer aristocratic movement.

They are very strict. They will possibly add a few names to the list, but it will be done with difficulty.

Many of the nobility of Europe are barred because there has been so much plebeian republican government there.

Even if the coexistence of the Nordics were correct, there is no indication that they are any better than other people.

At the beginning of the war there was a good deal of talk about Nordic supremacy and of Germany's being real Nordic, and so on, but the record in the war was not very good.

Time was when England and America were referred to as Anglo-Saxon, but the population has been so mixed with other races that the name has fallen into disuse.

Americans are human beings with mixed blood of all races, and the endeavor to classify them as any one particular race is futile.

ARE YOU SELF-CONSCIOUS IN RICH SURROUNDINGS?

Are you so self-conscious in the presence of those who are in better circumstances that you cannot hide your embarrassment? You try to assume a manner of nonchalance, but as a matter of fact it only emphasizes your lack of composure.

For instance, when you enter a large dining room at an expensive hotel and a waiter stands at your elbow you feel uncomfortable. Do you imagine everyone is looking at and watching you? You are so nervous that you do not take the necessary time to look over the menu and you therefore and the surprise by selecting a dinner which shows you up as inexperienced.

Most people about you are just as inexperienced in metropolitan life as you are.

They are just men and women and they don't care a thing about what you do.

Many of them could not measure up to you in any sense in worldly things, and yet you fear them enough to be uncomfortable.

Get yourself in hand.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

JILTING is one of the most expensive luxuries enjoyed by the male sex. American men spent over $2,000,000 last year for changing their minds.

It is supposed to be free, but a man can't give it to a lady without paying for it.

WOMEN are the only ones who are allowed to change their minds gratis.

THE law lets them jilt out of charge.

WHEN a girl sues a man for jilting her she means business, and the usually hired a lawyer to see that business is good.

It's getting so that it's dangerous to propose to a woman. It's safer to marry her first and ask her afterward.

ALMOST no dancer has heart-beat.

It's generally the women with the least heart who get the most love.
